

What type of sample collection is being administered by GVT?

For POC types tests administered on site, paranasal swab is being used for sample collection.

This type of sample collection is more comfortable for people being tested.

Swabs should be inserted 2 to 3 centimetres into a patient's nose, according to the Public Health Laboratory Network guidelines. (US Department of Health and Human Services)

